A WOMAN'S ANSWER. "Love thee!" Thou canst not ask of me So freely as I fain would give; "T is woman's great necessity To love so long as she can live. Therefore, if thou dost worthy prove, I cannot choose but give thee love.

"Honer thee!" By her reverence
The truest woman best is known;
She needs must honor where she finds
A nature loftier than her own;
I shall not turn from thee away,
Unless I find my idol clay!

"Obey!" Doth not the stronger will
The weaker govern and restrain?
Most sweet obedience woman yields
Where wisdom, power and manhood reign.
I'll give thee, if thou canst control neek submission of my soul!

Henceforward all mv life shall be
Moulded and fashioned by thine own;
If wisdom, power and constancy
In all thy words and deeds are shown;
Whether my vow be yea or nay,
I'll "love, and honor, and obey."

Description of Surprise Valley.

[Mr. J. H. Slater kindly handed us the following description of a beautiful valley-in the southern portion of Idaho Territory, received by him recently from a friend. It has been but little explored until this past Fall, hostile Indians having long made it a favorite resort after their murderous raids upon adjoining settlements. It will be settled up by hardy pioneers next Spring, who will defend their possessions if necessary with strong meetings in this city and elected Directors as arms and trusty rifles .- Ep.]

Surprise Valley is about one hundred miles portheast of Honey Lake Valley. It is about seventy-five miles in length, and from five to twenty miles in width. It is the finest valley of land and grass that I ever saw in my life. The valley runs nearly due north and south. There are three lakes in the valley, each near twenty miles in length, and from three to ten miles in width; they are all salt, as there is no outlet to them. The lakes lie near the east range of mountains, extending the full length of the valley; this range of mountains extend the entire length of the valley between the lakes and the desert bordering on the Humboldt River. The mountains on the east are destitute of vegetation or timber. The good land of the valley excends the entire length of all the lakes on the west side, adjoining the west range of mountains which constitute the divide between Surprise and Goose Lake valleys. It is about twenty-five miles across this west range from Surprise to Goose Lake valley, which is also a fine. large valley, well supplied with good timber. The land is good in Goose Lake Valley, and will be settled considerably next Summer. I will try to raise grapes in Surprise Valley next Summer; think I will succeed. But little snow falls in the valley, and it seldom lies any great length of time. There are probably one hundred creeks of clear, cold water running across and into the valley from the mountains on the west side; there are also several warm springs. This much I can say-for good land, grass or meadow land, good water and water power, I have never seen any country in my life to compare with Surprise Valley. Thousands of acres of grass, wild rye, timothy, redtop and clover that would cut three tons to the acre, cover the valley, and in many places the grass is so high that persons horseback cannot see each other fifty yards apart. There is any amount of prairie chickens, sage hens, ducks and geese, quails, rabbits, deer, mountain sheep and bear. Fruit-wild plums, choke cherries. and elder berries in any quantity. Timber— pine, cedar, spruce, tamarack, mountain mahogany, and various other kinds, on the mountains to the west from three to five miles S. M. FARMER. September 6th, 1864.

> A PROFANE DARKEY .- A humane lady in the west of Ohio, during the rush of contra-bands thither, took pity on a poor ragged boy of a decidedly dark complexion, and concluded to give him a bome in her family. After being decently clothed, Bud was as happy as a rebel in a Union prison, and soon was as fat as a prize pig. The good woman was pleased with her success, and all went on swimmingly until one day she heard him use the Lord's name in anything but a rever-ent manner. Calling Bud to her side she proceeded to lecture him upon the enormity of the deed, telling him that he would certainly go to Tophet unless he stopped his swearing.

"What kind of a place am dat?" "It is a lake of fire and brimstone."

"Fiah and brimstone, Missus?" "Yes, and you will be put into it and burned forever and ever." "But poor Bud burn all up, Misses !" "No you won't; you will keep burning but never be consumed."

"But I neber could stand it!" "You will have to stand it," replied the woman, somewhat at a loss for words to make him understand her meaning.

"Well," replied the juvenile contraband, "if I kin stand it, I don't care a d-m !" and immediately commenced to whistle "Down
